NORFOLK, WA, November 18.—Society has been active this week. There has been no time when there was not something to enjoy or to anticipate. Frequently while enjoying one social event the favored ones of society were anticipating another which, was aborty to follow. The difficulty, even at this early period of the season, is to prevent the concurrence of delightful events so that the devotes cannot finish with one before another begins. The season has started so that there will be a time when the members of society will be present at several eritertainment, every night. Meantime the gustatory events which are going on all the time in the most informal and delightful way are scarcely mentioned at all. These are the oyster roasts, which are more popular this season than every even succulent and delicious, or because shelety has learned how to turn them to advantage for complimenting and entertaining a party of friends. The oyster roasts take place on the bays and the beaches, and in the open alr. Hence they are not formal or distinctively social, but they are so novel, unique and variegated with several sprts of pleasures that they fill the time of a visitor here with the most agreeable sensations and form a feature for retrospection in the future which is a prelongation of the hospitality of the City by the Sea.

A delightful dinner was given Monday evening by the midshipmen aboard the United States ship Charleston. It was a farewell party before leaving this port. The table was heautifully decorated, and in the center was a huge bunch of chrysanthemums. The dinner was served in the steerage, and followed by music and dancting. Mrs. Russell chaperoned the party, and enjoying the function were Misses Amy Wentworth, Julia Parsons, Rosalie and Florence Bacot and Mr. George Bacot and Midshipmen Glover. Norris, Church, Haynes, McHyhee and Cox.
